PRESENTACIÓN

Este cuadernillo de trabajo, destinado al aula de inglés de 4º año de la Escuela Primaria, fue pensado desde una perspectiva plurilingüe e intercultural. Nuestro objetivo central es dar cuenta de la riqueza de experiencias previas que traen los niños a la escuela, y propiciar actitudes positivas hacia las lenguas y quienes las usan.

El material presenta una estructura de cuento que alienta a múltiples identificaciones con los diversos personajes y acciones que tienen lugar en la trama de la historia. La lengua se presenta en situaciones de prácticas de translenguaje; es decir, a lo largo del material se muestran usos flexibles y fluidos de más de una lengua para crear e interpretar significados más acabados, ante una diversidad de interlocutores plurilingües y con propósitos varios. Es por ello que los diálogos presentan instancias de usos del español y de lenguas originarias, como parte del entramado de lenguas disponibles en la provincia de Buenos Aires.

Esto no es un hecho menor, en tanto reconoce el carácter plurilingüe de la realidad bonaerense como parte de la riqueza y la diversidad cultural que caracterizan a nuestra provincia. En tal sentido, confiamos en que la propuesta de trabajo que presenta el material permita iniciar, desde muy temprana edad, el desarrollo de una conciencia intercultural; es decir, la capacidad de experimentar la otredad de modo constructivo y respetuoso.

Las actividades propuestas dan cuenta de un enfoque de resolución de problemas, coherente con la normativa curricular provincial. Asimismo, atienden a garantizar condiciones áulicas que propicien un clima de trabajo favorable para que los niños se animen a experimentar con la lengua; ensayar maneras de decir y hacer sobre temas de su interés en nuestro contexto.

Por otra parte, se intenta apoyar el trabajo de nuestros docentes con un material flexible a las necesidades contextuales. El cuadernillo podrá usarse como recurso editorial principal para el trabajo del aula en una determinada parte del ciclo lectivo; como material complementario a los recursos disponibles en la escuela; o como sustento para el desarrollo de un proyecto sobre medio ambiente y ecología desde la clase de inglés. Asimismo, cada docente podrá dar vuelo a su creatividad ofreciendo otras actividades no contempladas aquí. Reconocemos así su autoridad para determinar la forma en que este material será usado, adaptándolo a las necesidades áulicas e institucionales de cada escuela.

Argentina has got an amazing fauna. In different parts of the country you can see wonderful animals in diverse habitats. In the north west we can find pumas, condors, llamas and vicuñas. In the north east there are ant eaters, tapirs, toucans, monkeys and a variety of fish. In the south there are penguins, whales and seals on the coast and deer and wild cats in the mountains.

Andy: Is this your bird, Mailén?

Mailén: Yes, that's my bird. It's called Pichi.

Rebecca: Pichi? What does it mean?

Mailén: It means "small" in Mapuche. My grandma from Los Toldos gave me the egg of an ostrich. When it hatched, Pichi came out!

• Searching for help

Rebecca: Hi! Dr Lynch! This is Rebecca Hudson.

Dr Lynch: Hello, Rebecca! How are you?

Rebecca: Fine, thanks! Dr... I'm phoning because I've come across a very strange creature. I think it's a case of toxic substances on animals but I need your opinion. Could you come and see it?

Dr Lynch: Of course! Let me see my diary... today at 2 o'clock?

Rebecca: Sure. That's perfect.

• Chemical pollution

Rebecca: Dr Lynch is a famous Argentine zoologist. He studies birds and other animals in polluted areas.

Children: Hello!

Dr Lynch: Hello, children! So you're Mailén and this is your pet?

Mailén: That's right. This is Pichi.

Dr Lynch: OK, Mailén. Let me see your bird...

Rebecca: What's your opinion, Dr?

Dr Lynch: This is clearly a case of chemical pollution.

Andy: Chemical pollution?

Vicky: What's that?

Dr Lynch: In our world today, people use chemical substances both in the country and in the city. These substances contaminate our air, waters and land.

Rebecca: These chemicals are sometimes present in pesticides when farmers grow crops. The chemical substances in pesticides can cause deformities and illnesses when they are used constantly and without control.

Dr Lynch: Probably Pichi's mother is exposed to chemical substances.

Mailén: Oh! No! Can we help Pichi and her mother?

Dr Lynch: I'm sorry. It's too late.

Rebecca: But we can help stop chemical pollution.

• Take action

Hundreds march to stop chemical pollution

The illustration depicts a protest scene. On the left, a group of people is holding a large banner with the text "Love Nature? Go GREEN". In the center, another group is holding a sign that says "Go ORGANIC". To the right of the protest, there are several rows of blank handwriting practice lines for the word "Organic".

- Your carbon footprint project

Choose your classroom project. Use as many languages as you can to help people in your school community understand and participate.

Project 1:

Start a recycle-reduce-reuse campaign in your school. What can children do to protect nature? Design slogans, posters, leaflets. Explain younger children in your school how they can help. Talk with teachers and head teachers to decide on a school strategy to recycle-reduce-reuse.

Project 2:

Write a class book about our wonderful flora and fauna. Include information about endangered species. Show the book to parents and other children in your school.

Project 3:

Campaigning through drama. Act out the complete story in your school. Invite the people in your community to the play. Decorate the school with posters to make people aware of pollution.

Project 4:

Invite specialists to your school to talk about the consequences of pollution on people, animals and plants. Ask them questions to know more.
